

Patton Expands Into Albury, NSW!!!

Patton Australia is pleased to announce the opening of new Branch operation in Albury, NSW. As part of the ongoing expansion of their national network this brings the number of Patton outlets in Australia to nine.

The new operation is a joint venture between Patton Australia and two well-known and respected local identities, Barry McDonald and Craig Killalea.

Barry and Craig, who are both qualified refrigeration engineers, started their early working life in contracting and service but for the past 2 -3 decades have been heavily involved in wholesaling with a previous joint venture in Albury.

They now have the opportunity to establish the Patton name in the area while continuing to offer the same excellent service they have been noted for within the trade over many years.

As is common in the regional areas, the new operation will cover a large area, up to Dubbo in the north and Shepparton in the south. They will stock a full range of componentry including the popular Patton range of capital equipment including unit coolers and condensing units. The Branch objective is to operate as a 'one stop shop' to cover all the needs of the refrigeration and air conditioning trade. From its respected and extensive industry knowledge Patton have secured the distribution of many world leading brands which include Copeland, Embraco, Parker, Arkema and Henry, and these brands plus numerous others will be available through the Albury branch.

The new branch is conveniently located at 1/826 Hope Court with easy access to the bypass.

Patton Australia now have several highly successful joint ventures operating around Australia and are eager to explore more opportunities with other partners in regional areas. We would welcome enquiries from those interested in joining Patton in a joint venture.
